Introduction

The Software product hierarchy reflects how software products and appliances are grouped into Centers and Product families.

Once a year, each Software business unit updates its product hierarchy. This document provides an overview of the hierarchies for software and appliance products as they will be effective as of November 2016. Note that support and service offerings (including SaaS) are not covered by this document. The Software product hierarchy is defined by business for the Applications Delivery Management, Enterprise Security, Information Management & Governance, IT Operations Management and Platform product portfolios. Each business has one or more so called pillars or market categories.

Products marked with an asterisk (*) were previously HP branded product names. For example, HPE Backup Navigator * means the product previously was called HP Backup Navigator.
